JOSH MELOY OKLAHOMA'S RISING COUNTRY STAR CARVING HIS OWN PATH IN MUSIC

Josh Meloy, from Hennessey, Oklahoma, is making his mark in country music. His sound is raw and real, connecting deeply with listeners. Meloy says, "Growing up in Oklahoma shapes my songwriting and style. It definitely relates to my background." I feel lucky that we live in a time when raw music is so popular." He points out that today's independent artists don't have to take the usual paths. They don't have to spend big bucks in Nashville studios or get influenced by shows like "The Voice." Instead, they succeed through grassroots efforts and the power of streaming services. This lets them reach national audiences without needing radio play.

Meloy's path as an independent artist has had its challenges. He credits his success to hard work and the chances modern technology offers. "I recorded more songs at home, so I could release several quickly," he explains. His smart strategy has helped him grow a loyal fan base, especially in the Midwest. He has spent years building connections by returning to the same cities to perform. "Every time I come back, more people show up. They take you in and almost adopt you as family," he says. This highlights how important touring and word-of-mouth are.

One of Meloy's best songs, "Met the Devil in Oklahoma," is a fan favorite. It's themes resonate with many listeners. When asked about the song's inspiration, Meloy says, "There was no real inspiration—it just came to me." I've always had random ideas like this my whole life." The song talks

Where are they now? Gene and Connie Barnes

by AAH Shelley Muzny

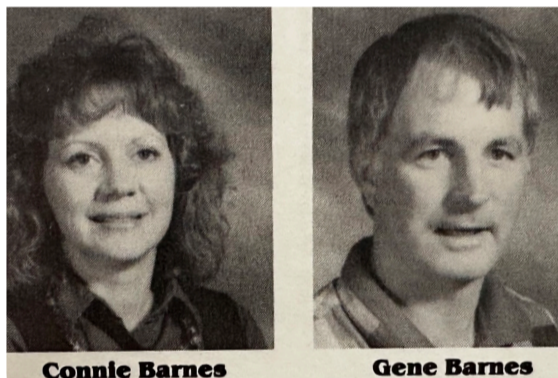

Gene and Connie Barnes may not have graduated from Hennessey High School, but they have made a significant impact on the school system and the community. Gene was raised in Garber, Oklahoma, by his parents, David and Edna Barnes. He graduated from Garber High School in 1967 and went on to attend the University of Oklahoma and Panhandle State University, where he played football.

Connie was raised in Lahoma by her parents, Vernon and Wynona Kuhnemund. She graduated from Lahoma High School in 1968 and attended Southwestern Oklahoma State University (SWOSU) after graduation. Gene and Connie married in 1972, and while Connie taught in Yarbrough, Gene completed his education.

After two years of teaching in Texas, the couple moved to Hennessey in 1975. Connie first taught at Dover for four years before joining the Hennessey school system. At Hennessey, she taught high school for one semester before moving to middle school, where she taught 7th and 8th-grade American History, Geography, and Current Events. Connie also coached middle school girls' basketball for a year, facilitated quiz bowl, and managed the middle school webpage.

Gene coached football and baseball before transitioning to teach elementary PE and science classes in high school. He later became the athletic director and worked in alternative education during evenings. Gene retired in 2012 but continues to work part-time in farming. Connie retired in 2009, and she has since been actively involved in teaching Sunday School at The First Christian Church in Hennessey for Pre-K and Kindergarten children. She started the Back to School Bash in 2010 and continues to contribute to this event each year. Additionally, Connie volunteers her time to help with the Teacher Back to School Luncheon annually and coordinates blood drives in Hennessey for the Oklahoma Blood Institute (OBI).

Both Gene and Connie are active members of the First Christian Church in Hennessey. They have two children: Brady and Brett. Brady graduated from Hennessey High School in 1995 and has served as the Principal at Hennessey; he is currently the Superintendent at Blanchard. He and his wife, Cara, have three children: Cameron (24), Cassidy (18), and Callen (14). Cameron works for Damian Hugaboom at Hennessey Metal Buildings. Brett graduated from Hennessey High School in 1997 and has been the principal at Chisholm Middle School for several years. He and his late wife, Amy, have two children: Brylee (18) and Brayson (15).

In 2018, following the death of Connie's mother, they moved to Enid to be closer to the farmland Connie inherited in Lahoma. Connie and Gene are now actively involved in farming alongside Brett. The family has taken many trips together, both before and after retirement, and Gene and Connie have visited nearly all 50 states. Both are cancer survivors and are doing well. The most important aspect of their lives now is attending their grandchildren's activities. photos provided

REV UP YOUR ENGINES!

On March 8th, Kingfisher Cub Scouts Troop 196 hosted the Kingfisher County Pinewood Derby. The troop had eight scouts and nine non-scouts participating. Each participant started with a block of wood and designed their own race car, which could weigh no more than five ounces. Throughout the building process, they learned about weight distribution and showcased their unique designs. The Pinewood Derby is an annual event that every pack participates in. Troop 196 has been hosting and participating in this event for so long that they've lost count; however, they know they have been involved for over 20 years. Look out for next year's Derby and come take part! photos by AAK Bonny Flesher

The inaugural Miss Kingfisher County Pageant themed "The Bold and Beautiful" was a dazzling display of intelligence and grace, proving that pageantry is far more than just sequins and sashes.

In the end, Valentina Insignares stole the show with her well-rounded performance. Not only did she claim the crown, but she also secured victories in Interview and Talent, making it clear that she's got both the brains and the brilliance. Now, as Miss Kingfisher County class of 2026, Insignares will take her talents beyond the county line, representing the area at state-level competitions and local community events. With a title in hand and a tiara to match, her journey is just beginning. Information and Photos by AAH, Shelley Muzny

PATRICK GRIFFIN STEPS DOWN AS PRESIDENT OF HENNESSEY BOARD OF EDUCATION AFTER 15 YEARS OF SERVICE

Patrick Griffin, a resident of Hennessey, has made significant contributions to Hennessey Schools. He is the Operations Manager at Griffin Resources, LLC. This company is an independent oil and gas producer and operator. He graduated from Texas Tech University in 1991. Now, he works at the company's office in Hennessey, Oklahoma.

Besides his work, Patrick, known as the Eagle Voice, is active in Hennessey Schools. He serves as President of the Hennessey Board of Education. However, he recently announced plans to step down from this position. Monday, March 10th, was his last Board of Education meeting.

Expressing his gratitude, Patrick said, "I sincerely thank the community for allowing me to serve Hennessey schools for 15 of the past 19 years. It has been an honor and a privilege to serve the students, the faculty, the staff, and the administration. I have served with many different school board members, four regular superintendents, and one interim over that period of time, and I am forever thankful for that opportunity from the community."

INTEGRIS HEALTH ENID HOSPITAL LAUNCHES FIRST BLESSING BOX

INTEGRIS Health Enid Hospital is proud to announce the launch of its first Blessing Box, a community-driven initiative created by the INTEGRIS Health Community Benefit department to provide essential items to those in need.

The Blessing Box operates on a simple yet powerful philosophy: "Give what you can, take what you need." It is stocked with a variety of non-perishable food items and essential supplies, including:

- Canned and dried foods
- Crackers and bottled water
- Peanut butter and baby formula
- Diapers, baby wipes and baby food
- Toiletries such as deodorant, soap, shaving cream
- Toilet paper and other hygiene essentials
- Seasonal items like stocking caps, mittens and hand warmers

This initiative is part of INTEGRIS Health's ongoing commitment to supporting the local community we care for and serve and providing resources to those facing hardships. The Blessing Box is located outside the main entrance of INTEGRIS Health Enid Hospital and is available 24/7, offering immediate assistance to anyone in need.

Teresa Dunham, community benefit specialist at INTEGRIS Health Enid Hospital, submitted the idea for consideration and worked with the manager of facility services, Russell Wilson. "Teresa came to me with this community idea so we coordinated the logistics and launch date, and then I used re-purposed materials to craft the Blessing Box," says Wilson. "The Blessing Box is a simple yet impactful way to help those facing food insecurity or financial hardship. This is a wonderful way for our caregivers and the Enid community to come together and support those in need."

INTEGRIS Health Enid Hospital joins the growing network of Blessing Boxes in the community, alongside locations at YWCA Enid and First United Methodist Church. By placing a box at the hospital, caregivers and community members alike have a convenient way to donate supplies and directly impact lives.

"At INTEGRIS Health, we are dedicated to providing exceptional medical care and being a source of strength and support for our community," says Dunham. "Whether donating or benefiting from the Blessing Box, we are proud to foster kindness, generosity and care for our neighbors. We encourage everyone to give when they can and take when they need."

The INTEGRIS Health Enid Hospital invites everyone to participate—drop off donations, spread the word and help make a difference. For more information or how you can help, please contact Teresa Dunham at 580-548-1782.

LADY EAGLES SECURE AREA WIN BEFORE FALLING SHORT IN SECOND ROUND

The Lady Eagles opened the Area tournament with a thrilling 37-35 victory over Heritage Hall before seeing their postseason run come to an end against No. 2-ranked Community Christian in a 47-31 loss.

Facing Heritage Hall in the first round, the Lady Eagles overcame a slow start after being held scoreless from the field for the first five minutes.

The Chargers led 9-1 after the first quarter, but Hennessey responded with a dominant second quarter, outscoring Heritage Hall 19-4 to take control at halftime.

Momentum swung again in the third quarter, but a clutch performance from Starr Torres helped the Lady Eagles extend their lead. Heritage Hall mounted a furious comeback in the fourth, tying the game with less than a minute remaining, but Ally Painter delivered the decisive bucket inside to seal the win and keep Hennessey's postseason hopes alive.

In their next matchup, the Lady Eagles battled Community Christian in a high-stakes elimination game. The Royals opened with an 8-0 run, but Hennessey quickly responded with a 10-0 surge of its own, setting up a back-and-forth contest. At halftime, the Lady Eagles held a narrow 21-20 lead.

The third quarter remained tightly contested, but Community Christian edged ahead with timely shooting. In the fourth, the Royals took over, closing the game on a decisive run to put it out of reach. Despite a valiant effort, Hennessey fell 47-31, bringing a bittersweet end to a hard-fought season. by AAH Taylor Ladwig, photos by AAH Emily Ramirez

Rev. Ish Engle

The Bible warns us to "fear the Lord" several times. That used to always bother me, as a follower of Jesus, because it seemed strange to fear the One I loved. We often hear that 'true love drives out all fear', and while there is something to that, it echoes the thoughts of this world more than of our God. But then I started thinking about fear...

One of the worst fears we all face is one we have convinced ourselves does not exist: peer pressure. As adults, we like to pat ourselves on the back for having outgrown worrying about what others think about us. We think that because we don't have bullies and get along well with most of the folk in our lives, we are not subject to peer pressure's power.

Think on that the next time you hear about the "best selling truck in Oklahoma" or "America's new favorite!" We are so afraid of what people think of us that we tend to contort and bend our lives to fit the "acceptable". We tend to fear humans, and not worry about God.

The story that really helped me understand the meaning of "fear the Lord" is found in 2 Samuel. I thank David Crowder and his band for their song, "Undignified", for highlighting this story. King David is having the Ark of the Covenant moved into Jerusalem. He goes out and leads the procession with dancing, prayer, and sacrifices. As the day warms, he strips down until he is in only "a linen ephod." And his wife chastises him.

"You have embarrassed yourself in front of all of Israel" she tells David. His response, "It was for the Lord that I danced. And, if it pleases Him, I can become even more undignified than this." David understood that fearing, or rather, respecting God's opinion was far more important than respecting any other opinion.

So, ask yourself, "Who do I fear?" The people around you at work? The looks of folk at Wal-Mart? Or do you fear the Lord: the giver of Life? We are called to love the Lord with all our heart, mind, soul, and strength. But, we should always fear disappointing Him more than we worry about how cool our neighbors think we are.

Hennessey Firefighters Earn EMR Certifications, Strengthening Emergency Response Team

HENNESSEY, OK — Two Hennessey firefighters, Kyle Keeton and Dustin Grellner, have successfully earned their Emergency Medical Responder (EMR) certifications after completing a 12-week training course. The program, started before construction began on the new fire station, covered essential emergency skills, including patient assessments, bleeding control, airway management with oxygen therapy, and trauma stabilization.

Thanks to tuition assistance from the Hennessey Round-Up Club, Keeton and Grellner are now state-licensed EMRs, bringing the department's total number of medically licensed staff to five. With their certifications and Heartland Medical Direction Protocols, they will also receive specialized training to expand their skill set.

The EMR class was organized by Sara Kaiser through Heartland Medical Education. Additionally, Hennessey Fire Chief Brandon Scott and Levi Copeland have become certified instructors with Heartland Medical Education and are currently leading a new EMR course.

This class includes six new candidates from Hennessey and students from neighboring fire departments in Waukomis, Loyal, and Dover. Photo by AAH Jack Quirk
