KINGFISHER COUNTY COMMISSIONER OUTLINES ROAD PLANS FOR GRITZ ACRES RESIDENTS

About 20 Residents of the Gritz Acres addition met with Kingfisher County Commissioner Mike Sparks on Wednesday, May 29, at the Gathering Place to discuss upcoming road improvements and community infrastructure plans for the area. Gritz Acres is located along E. Conoco Rd. (E640 Rd.) and extends south on Mitchell Rd.

Sparks outlined his strategy to address road conditions using cost-effective techniques like grinding and double-chip and seal. He contrasted this method with the significantly higher cost of traditional four-inch overlays, noting that chip and seal costs about $100,000 per mile compared to up to $800,000 for overlays.

Sparks also outlined the plan to repair Conoco Rd from Hwy 81 to S Mitchell, all of S Mitchell between Conoco and Exxon Rd, and all of Exxon Rd between S Mitchell and Hwy 81.

Other action items discussed include setting a consistent 35 mph speed limit, coordinating with residents on driveway culvert installations, and addressing drainage and sinkhole issues before major repairs begin. Photos by AAH Jack Quirk

REDEFINING RECOVERY: ABIDING'S PERSONALIZED APPROACH

In a world where health care can often feel impersonal Abiding Home Health in Enid, Oklahoma, is taking a different approach, one that feels a lot more like family. Reesa, a seasoned home health care professional with nearly two decades of experience, who, along with her close-knit team, has been part of the Abiding Home Health family since its founding two and a half years ago.

"We worked together for years before this," Reesa explains, "but the opportunity to work for a family-owned company again felt like going back to our roots." That personal touch makes all the difference, allowing for quicker decisions and tailored care. "If there's a concern, I can call the owner directly. That kind of access helps us focus on what's best for the patient, fast."

There's a common misconception that home health care is only for the elderly or terminally ill. Not so, says Reesa. "Home health is like an extension of the hospital. Our goal is to help patients recover and regain independence, safely, in their own homes." That includes services like nursing, wound care, speech therapy, physical therapy, and occupational therapy, which are often misunderstood.

"People think occupational therapy is about going back to work," she laughs. "But it's really about daily living, dressing, even showering after a stroke. It's about giving people their independence back."

The care doesn't stop at private residences either. Abiding Home Health also serves patients in assisted living facilities. "As long as we can justify a skilled need, we can provide therapy or education right there. The aim is to help people stay in their preferred living environment as long as possible."

Accessing services begins with a doctor's referral, but Abiding Home Health encourages anyone with questions to call. "We have a nurse on call 24/7. Even if we can't provide a service, we'll guide you to someone who can," Reesa says.

For families navigating the challenges of elder care or rehabilitation, having a compassionate, knowledgeable resource like Abiding Home Health can be a game-changer. "We're not forever," Reesa emphasizes, "but we're here when you need help getting back on your feet."

CRUSHING DISABILITY: THE CENTER OF FAMILY LOVE'S MISSION TO EMPOWER THROUGH PURPOSE

In a heartwarming and enlightening All About Network Show, Shawn, the COO of the Center of Family Love (CFL), shared the powerful mission behind this unique organization based in Okarche, Oklahoma. CFL provides lifelong residential care and vocational opportunities for adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD). With 130 residents living on campus, ranging from those needing full-time nursing in Intermediate Care Facilities (ICF) to more independent group homes, CFL fosters a sense of purpose, family, and dignity.

At the heart of CFL's philosophy is the idea of "removing the DISS from disability." This shift in focus highlights what individuals can do, rather than what they can't. Residents work in businesses like a filter shop, a floral shop, a t-shirt printing shop, and a horticulture operation that supplies top restaurants with microgreens. One resident, Shea, is so skilled in floral design that she now trains incoming florists. Another, Travis, creates comic-book quality illustrations and has even developed his own character, "Travman."

Beyond employment, CFL offers programming in culinary arts, STEM, dance, fitness, and life skills for those not yet ready for outside work. These activities not only build confidence but also cultivate daily independence and joy.

A major development on the horizon is CFL's capital campaign for a new Career Training and Development Center in Piedmont. This facility will serve youth starting at age 16 through adulthood, bridging the often-overlooked transition from high school to the workforce for people with IDD and autism. With 14 planned program areas and an integrated career placement model, including business partnerships and job coaching, CFL aims to empower hundreds more every year

The recent premiere of CFL's documentary, now an award-winning film, captured the world through the eyes of its residents. Personalities like Daisy and her thought-provoking statements showed the emotional depth and wisdom of the community. As Shawn said, visiting the CFL is life-changing; the love and pride among the residents is palpable. For many, CFL isn't just a place to live or work; it's home.

By unlocking potential and shifting perceptions, CFL is truly "crushing disability" and building a more inclusive future, one empowered life at a time. You can watch the full episode on YouTube or allabouthennessey.com photos provided

Fact vs. Folklore: What to Do When a Tornado Strikes

by AAH Libby Seiger

Each year, tornadoes tear across parts of the United States, leaving trails of destruction in their wake. From the infamous "Tornado Alley" to areas less traditionally associated with twisters, the impact of these storms is as far-reaching as the myths that surround them.

Despite advances in meteorology and emergency alert systems, misconceptions about tornadoes continue to thrive. These myths can lead people to make poor, and sometimes fatal, decisions during severe weather events. It's time to separate fact from fiction and equip ourselves with the knowledge we need to stay safe.

COMMON MISCONCEPTIONS ABOUT TORNADOES

Myth 1: Tornadoes don't strike big cities, mountains, or cross rivers.

This is one of the most dangerous misconceptions. While it's true that tornadoes may be less frequent in certain areas due to geographical patterns, they do not discriminate. Tornadoes have hit downtown areas of cities like Nashville, Atlanta, and Dallas. They have crossed rivers, formed in valleys, and even touched down in mountainous regions. In fact, urban areas can be more hazardous due to higher population density and more debris.

Myth 2: Opening windows will prevent your house from exploding.

This myth dates back to a time when pressure differences during a tornado were misunderstood. The idea was that opening windows would equalize the pressure inside and outside a home, preventing it from "exploding." In reality, the violent winds and flying debris are what cause damage, not pressure. Opening windows simply invites debris and strong winds into your home and wastes time that should be spent seeking shelter.

Myth 3: Seeking shelter under an overpass is safe.

This myth became widespread after video footage during a 1991 tornado showed people surviving under an overpass. However, experts now warn that overpasses can become wind tunnels, intensifying wind speeds and sucking debris through the narrow space. It's one of the worst places to be during a tornado. Instead, seek shelter in a sturdy building or low-lying ditch if no other option is available.

Myth 4: Tornadoes are always visible.

Many believe that if they don't see a funnel cloud, they're safe. In reality, tornadoes can be shrouded in rain or darkness, especially during nighttime storms or in regions where "rain-wrapped" tornadoes are common. Also, the condensate from the clouds doesn't have to reach all the way to the ground for the tornado to be considered "on the ground." The winds often reach the ground before the clouds do. Don't wait until you see it, act when a warning is issued.

Myth 5: Tornadoes only happen in the spring.

While spring is the peak season for tornadoes in many parts of the country, tornadoes can occur in any month. In recent years, unusual weather patterns have triggered deadly outbreaks in the fall and winter. Tornado preparedness should be a year-round habit.

TORNADO SAFETY: WHAT TO DO BEFORE, DURING, AND AFTER A STORM

Before a Tornado: Be Prepared

Create a family emergency plan. Know where to go and how to communicate with loved ones. Build an emergency kit. Include water, non-perishable food, flashlights, a radio, batteries, first-aid supplies, and medications.

Know your local alerts. Sign up for local emergency notifications, and make sure your phone's alerts are enabled. A NOAA weather radio is especially useful in case of power loss.

Identify your safe place. Ideally, this should be a basement or an interior room on the lowest level of your home, away from windows and exterior walls.

During a Tornado: Take Immediate Action

Go to your safe place immediately when a tornado warning is issued. Don't wait for sirens or visual confirmation.

Cover yourself with heavy blankets, a mattress, or helmets to protect against flying debris. Put shoes on in case you need to walk through debris afterward.

If you're in a mobile home or vehicle, evacuate. Mobile homes offer little protection during tornadoes. Find shelter in a nearby sturdy building.

If no shelter is available, lie flat in a ditch or low-lying area, cover your head, and stay alert for flooding.

After a Tornado: Stay Alert

Listen to emergency officials. Stay tuned to your NOAA radio, local media, or weather app for updates.

Avoid downed power lines and report them to authorities.

Be cautious around debris. Nails, glass, and other hazards can pose serious risks.

Check on neighbors, especially the elderly or disabled, who may need help or be unaware of alerts.

WHY EDUCATION MATTERS

Each year, tornadoes kill an average of 70 people in the U.S. and injure over 1,500, according to the National Weather Service. Many of these deaths and injuries are preventable with proper knowledge and preparation. The more we understand tornadoes - how they form, how they behave, and how to respond, the better equipped we are to survive them.

Tornadoes are among the most violent weather phenomena on Earth, but they don't have to be deadly. Myths and misinformation can be just as dangerous as the storms themselves. By embracing facts, preparing early, and acting quickly, you can protect yourself and your loved ones when the sirens sound. This tornado season, don't rely on luck, trust the science, have a plan, and stay weather-aware.

LITTLE EAGLES 6U GO UNDEFEATED TO WIN HENNESSEY TOURNAMENT

The Little Eagles 6U softball team went undefeated last weekend May 31 - June 1 and brought home the championship title in Hennessey. The day started with waterlogged fields at 7 a.m., but thanks to quick action by the association, including using an airboat to help dry things out, the tournament was saved.

The girls came ready to play and delivered all day long. With solid defense, strong throws, aggressive base running, and big hits, they made every game count. A key outfield relay and some impressive slides kept fans on their feet.

Kinzlie Nelson earned MVP honors for two standout tags that shut down scoring chances. The entire team played with heart, hustle, and grit.

A big thanks goes out to the volunteers who made the tournament possible. The Little Eagles didn't just win games, they made memories.

HENNESSEY STUDENTS ATTEND ALA OKLAHOMA GIRLS STATE

Since its founding in 1940, ALA Oklahoma Girls State has provided a unique opportunity for young women across the state to learn firsthand how government works. Conducted annually by the American Legion Auxiliary, except during a two-year pause in World War II and again in 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic, this one-week leadership and citizenship program educates outstanding high school students on the structure and function of state and local government.

Through simulated political campaigns, elections, and mock legislative sessions, delegates experience the democratic process in action. The program is designed to inspire civic involvement, leadership, and a deeper understanding of public service.

This year, Hennessey High School was proudly represented by Tayler Franklin and Jocelyn Matousek. The two delegates participated in the 2025 session held at the University of Central Oklahoma. They were sponsored by the Hennessey Child Study Club, whose ongoing support makes it possible for local students to take part in this life-changing experience.

Franklin and Matousek joined other top high school juniors from across Oklahoma, gaining knowledge, confidence, and friendships that will last a lifetime.

Meet Tanner Black: HENNESSEY'S NEW BASEBALL COACH

Tanner Black is a graduate of Enid High School and Southwestern Oklahoma State University. Tanner's path from valedictorian to middle school history teacher is marked by hard work, heart, and a whole lot of hustle.

Tanner graduated from Enid High in 2015 as valedictorian before heading to Weatherford to pursue his passion for education. He earned his Bachelor of Arts in Secondary Education with a focus in History from SWOSU in December 2019. During his time there, he not only hit the books but also worked as a barista, honed customer service skills, and stayed grounded with part-time jobs to help fund his education. He passed all three of his Oklahoma certification exams—OGET, OSAT, and OPTE—on the first try, proving his commitment to the craft of teaching. His teaching career launched in the gym—literally—when he stepped into a role as a P.E. teacher at Garfield Elementary in 2019. By August 2020, Tanner moved to Longfellow Middle School where he taught Geography and U.S. History to grades 6 through 8. Over the past five years, he's become a dependable role model both in and out of the classroom, making a difference in young lives through teaching and coaching.

And when school lets out? That's when Coach Black steps up to the plate. As a varsity assistant and JV head coach for Enid High Baseball, Tanner has helped guide teams to major milestones—Region 7 Champions in 2024, Class 6A State Runner-Up in 2023, and Region 6 Champions in 2022. His leadership extended to summer programs, mentoring players on not just skills, but teamwork, sportsmanship, and discipline. Outside of school, Tanner gives back through volunteer work, including Special Olympics and youth baseball camps. His dedication earned him Longfellow's "Teacher of the Month" in April 2021 and induction into Phi Alpha Theta, the national history honor society.

THE SECRET INGREDIENT IS FAMILY

By AAH Amy Smith

In the heart of Kingfisher, there's a place where the ovens never rest, the coffee is always brewing, and the smiles come free with every order. Welcome to 81 Bakehouse, where one remarkable family is baking up something truly special.

At the center of it all are Curtis and Sarah Walker, the eyes, ears, and hands behind every detail. From the early-morning prep to the last crumb swept up at closing, their dedication is poured into each part of the process. But they'll be the first to tell you, this dream wouldn't work without the whole family working together, side by side.

Their son Jude is the friendly face behind the coffee counter; his smile is as warm as the drinks he expertly crafts. A true barista at heart, he brews with care and intention. Alongside him is Connor, a close family friend and the ultimate wingman. He helps customers pick just the right drink or treat and makes everyone feel right at home.

Calleigh, the family's bread whisperer, is the artist behind the slow-fermented sourdough loaves that are as beautiful as they are delicious. Then there's Titus and Asa, the dynamic duo in charge of the sandwich station. They put together every ingredient with love to create mouthwatering sandwiches and fresh, hearty salads.

And we can't forget Hadassah, affectionately known as the cookie monster. She's the master of baking and decorating the irresistible cookies and pastries that fly off the shelves. Her sweet creations are a reflection of her joy, adding color and delight to every display case. Every member of the Walker family has a role, and every role is important. Together, they make 81 Bakehouse more than a bakery; it's a unit of hard work, love, built on family, faith, and the desire to serve their community with warmth and intention.

"It's labor-intensive, but it's worth it," says Curtis. "We wanted everything from scratch. High quality. No shortcuts." That commitment is baked into everything they do, from the famous sourdough chocolate chip cookies to the classic snickerdoodles and everything in between. Beyond the incredible food and coffee, what truly sets 81 Bakehouse apart is its heart. This isn't just a business, it's a place to gather, to connect, and to feel known. Whether they're baking for a custom order, participating in local events, or simply sharing smiles across the counter, the Walkers are building something far bigger than a bakery.

And while the dream continues to grow, breakfast items, healthier options, and maybe even croissants someday, one thing remains the same: 81 Bakehouse isn't just about baking. It's about belonging. But don't take our word for it, check them out at 223 N Main St, Kingfisher, (405) 538-5665. 81 Bakehouse hours are Tuesday-Friday 7 am-4 pm and Saturday 7 am-3 pm.

Senate Minutes with Senator Chuck Hall June 2, 2025

The Senate adjourned Sine Die on Friday, ending a productive four-month legislative session. We passed hundreds of policy bills and fulfilled our constitutional duty by passing a balanced budget that takes effect July 1. This marked the end of my first full year serving as the Senate's Appropriations Chairman, a job I take very seriously. I'm still deeply honored that the Senate President Pro Tem appointed me to this position.

I want to highlight a few of the investments this budget makes in public education. This budget increases common education funding by $121 million, which includes a $26 million increase that goes directly into the school funding formula. This funding increase is tied to legislation extending the minimum teacher salary schedule to ensure our most experienced teachers receive a salary that's commensurate with their years of service. Another new appropriation ensures that the children of teachers with at least ten years of experience are eligible for Oklahoma's Promise scholarship.

This budget also allocates $5 million for a new program that strengthens the teacher pipeline. The Grow Your Own Educator initiative will bring more qualified teachers into the classroom by providing districts with matching funds to support local school employees pursuing an undergraduate degree in education and a teaching certificate. Additionally, there's a modest appropriation that will offer grants to schools that commit to going cellphone-free for at least three years. This appropriation complements a new law that requires all public schools to restrict student phone use throughout the 2025-2026 school year, which is an important step toward eliminating classroom distractions. Finally, this budget includes an increase in funding to support teachers' benefits, such as paid maternity leave.

Also included in the state budget is a tax reform package that will simplify Oklahoma's tax code and return money to all taxpayers. The state will restructure its six income tax brackets into just three brackets on taxable income. This will make our tax system easier to understand and fairer for taxpayers at all income levels. It will also put Oklahoma closer to having a flat tax.

As part of the Senate's commitment to making the state budget process more open, we recently launched the Senate Budget Transparency Dashboard. This interactive website offers the public a clear and detailed look at how all taxpayer dollars are being spent. The dashboard breaks down funding for each state agency and every line item in the budget. It also includes the details of past budgets so people can see how state spending has changed over time. I appreciate the Senate's staff for all the hard work they put into bringing this tool to fruition. You can see the Senate Budget Transparency Dashboard at oksenate.gov/appropriations.

In the final days of the session, the Senate confirmed dozens of the governor's appointments to various positions within state government. It was truly an honor to guide several outstanding Oklahomans from my district through the Senate confirmation process. I carried the nomination of Dennis Casey, who was appointed to the State Regents for Higher Education after more than three decades working in public education. I also carried the nominations of Dr. Shannon Ferrell to the Environmental Quality Board, Dr. Preston Morgan to join the State Board of Behavioral Health Licensure and Robert Moses to serve on the Commission on Consumer Credit.

As always, it's an honor and a privilege to serve the people of Senate District 20. Please feel free to contact my Capitol office with any questions or concerns you may have about legislation or other issues impacting our state at 405-521-5628 or at Chuck.Hall@oksenate.gov.
