COMBINE STRUCK BY TRAIN NEAR BISON; WAUKOMIS FIRE CHIEF INJURED

by AAH Jack Quirk

BISON, Okla. – According to a report by authorities, Waukomis Volunteer Fire Chief and local farmer Bobby Kokojan was injured Saturday, June 21st when the combine he was operating was struck by a northbound Union Pacific train.

The accident occurred at approximately 1:45 p.m. at an unmarked railroad crossing between Bison and Waukomis. The impact pushed the combine nearly a quarter-mile down the tracks and ignited a fire in the surrounding wheat stubble.

The Waukomis Fire Department quickly responded and extinguished the blaze. Kokojan was airlifted to OU Medical Center. His current condition has not been released. The incident remains under investigation. Photo by Deanna Grace

TORNADO WARNINGS SURROUND HENNESSEY TUESDAY NIGHT

by AAH Jack Quirk

HENNESSEY, Okla. It was a tense the evening of Tuesday, June 17th in Hennessey as two separate tornado warnings were issued around 10:30 p.m. on June 17th, one just north of town, covering areas from south of Bison to Enid, and another directly over the City of Kingfisher.

With severe weather on the radar, the Hennessey Fire Department established a storm command center at the fire station. Fire Chief Brandon Scott and All About Hennessey's Jack Quirk closely monitored real-time radar and storm data to assess the threats and communicate with Hennessey Police and Emergency Management.

All About Hennessey went live at 10:42 p.m., updating residents that although the tornado-warned storms would pass north of town, Hennessey was expected to experience high winds and heavy rain.

Despite the warnings, Hennessey's sirens were not activated, as the most severe threats remained outside the town's immediate area. However, in Kingfisher, the situation was far more urgent. Radar showed a potential tornado inside city limits moving east along Highway 33. But when officials attempted to sound the sirens, they failed to activate. This critical failure that has prompted city leaders and county commissioners to consider upgrading to the same modern system Hennessey installed last year.

RAISING THE BARRE IN RURAL OKLAHOMA: REDLEVÉ DANCE STUDIO

When Sadye Cabral first landed in Hennessey, Oklahoma, after marrying Ivan, who works for the All About Network, she didn't expect to become the town's dance matriarch. Originally from Oklahoma City, Sadye was still dancing with OKC Ballet and commuting her daughter to studios in Kingfisher and Enid. Starting her own studio in a tiny town like Hennessey wasn't in the plan.

"At first it was kind of a joke," she said with a smile. "Ivan said, 'Why don't you just open your own?' And it just clicked."

That joke became reality in February 2021 with the opening of RedLevé Dance Studio. Now in its fourth season, the studio has blossomed into something far more ambitious, complete with a brand-new building south of town, a growing roster of competitive teams, and a calendar filled with performances, showcases, and travel.

Behind the scenes, the hustle is nonstop. Preparing for a recital or competition isn't just a matter of choreography. It's about making sure every dancer knows where to go, how to move on a foreign stage, and how to switch seamlessly between costumes, hairstyles, and routines, often in a matter of minutes. "It's chaos," Sadye admits. "But a neat chaos."

One thing that sets RedLevé apart is Sadye's instinctive approach to choreography. "I never plan ahead. I just listen to the song, look at the dancers, and build the moves on the spot." That intuition shows, whether it's in the emotional arc of a performance or the detail of a themed costume, down to the perfect red lipstick.

It's not just about recitals either. Sadye has built a full-blown competitive dance program. Her students are no longer just beginners trying something new; they're placing at regional competitions and heading to nationals. This summer, her teams will travel to Galveston to compete at a national level. "Last year, we went to Vegas. So this year will feel a little closer. Maybe less stressful."

RedLevé now supports three competitive teams divided by age, minis, petites, and juniors, with plans to expand even more. "We don't really get a break," she laughs. "We took one week off before we jumped back in."

Enrollment for the fall season begins in June, with classes kicking off in August and continuing through a school-style calendar year. A mid-year winter ball gives parents a preview, followed by a full spring recital. For those wanting to join, info is available on the studio's social media and website at redleve.com

Watching the studio grow from a handful of students to a stage-filling team has been nothing short of remarkable. "We're all in now," Sadye says, reflecting on the journey. What started as a casual suggestion has turned into a full-blown movement, one plié at a time.

NOT JUST NAMED AFTER SEASONS... WE'VE LIVED THEM.

Hi friends! It's your neighborhood Sister Duo! Hope you're not sick of us giving you advice. Part of the reason we chose the name OKSeasonedSisters (beyond the obvious of our names being Summer and Autumn) is that we've experienced seasons of life—literally and figuratively. With every season we try to learn something new. We've chosen to share what we've learned to season your life/lives and hopefully help you/ someone you know on your/their journey—maybe our advice could keep you from making the same mistake or help you understand what you're feeling/what you're going through or how to be there for someone else. Maybe it can provide the encouragement to keep going/keep trying.

*We also want you to know that you're not alone. Often times when you're going through something, you feel like maybe you're the only one who messes up this bad. You're not. Just know that you aren't alone in your struggles...even if it feels like you are. God is with you even if you are physically alone. Trust that.*

You know who probably is sick of our advice? Our kids. Will that stop us from sharing it? No.

One of the most repeated pieces of advice is "Don't give up what you want most for what you want now" Autumn's kids are younger so she actually says "don't let what sounds good now distract you from what's best"

You may have come across this little nugget yourself if you've ever gone on a diet but have you ever really thought about how it can apply to every aspect of your life?

Your career. Your marriage. Your education. Your spending habits. Your parenting. Your daily habits. Even your walk with God. Have you ever wanted to have a closer walk with God but then you allow the distractions of everyday life stop you from reading His Word? Yeah, same. You can apply this same concept. "Don't give up what you want most for what you want now." You ultimately want Heaven? Don't get distracted by sin. The word "sin" has such a negative connotation that we sometimes imagine it as a nasty, yucky thing. But, all too often, sin can be very appealing... even as simple and seemingly innocent as being lazy...

A daily discipline to help achieve your best is: Do what you have to first, then maybe you can do what you want! Or, in the terms for our kids,

Do what you're told before you do (or ask to do) what you want. We are praying that this little bit of advice reaches you how we intend it...tenderly, with love and encouragement. With love, OKSeasonedSisters.

LADY EAGLES SOAR AT 2ND ANNUAL HENNESSEY SUMMER SHOOT-OUT

by AAH Cam Griffin

The Hennessey Lady Eagles basketball team hosted the 2nd Annual Hennessey Summer Shoot-Out, with 21 schools and 36 teams participating on June 17th and 18th at the Eagle Event Center, and the new elementary gym in Dover.

During the two days, with 91 games total, the Hennessey Lady Eagles were the only team to go undefeated at 7-0 in games against Crossings Christian , Pond Creek-Hunter, Okeene, Hooker, Southmoore, Calumet, and Guthrie. The Lady Eagles' work ethic and determination paid off during the Hennessey Summer Shoot-Out, and prepares them diligently for the next season.

This year's shoot-out has tripled in size from last summer, and with the addition of the Dover gyms, it will only continue to grow and provide another great opportunity for young athletes to showcase their skills. The event would not have been possible without the support of the Lady Eagle Basketball Boosters, especially Chandra Seiger and Jamie Goff, who provided a hospitality room and meals for the girls during their summer camps. Additional thanks go to Lisa Weaver and Frances Streck for their contributions.

The Lady Eagles had a great Summer, finishing with 25 wins and 5 losses. After watching the performance in the Hennessey Summer Shoot-Out, it is apparent the Lady Eagles are ready to take on this year's basketball season. photos by AAH Cam Griffin

Dennis devoted his life to working hard and giving selflessly to those around him. Whether it was fixing plumbing at his daughters' homes, crafting woodworking projects with his grandson, taming bees, or mowing lawns alongside his sister, Dennis was always ready to lend a hand. He found joy in traveling with loved ones, exploring antique stores in search of powder puff jars for Melanie, and more recently, restoring old clocks with careful attention and curiosity. ## FROM THE PULPIT

First Baptist Church Pastor Shane Bennett

CHRIST IN YOU, not you in VBS

We're in the thick of summer ministry and that means taking kids to various camps and doing Vacation Bible School. Most Oklahomans can look back on childhood memories at church, learning about God while we make a flaming bush out of tissue paper or something. It's a time when we, as adults in the church focus on simple, straightforward ways of communicating the life-changing truths of the gospel.

Many times, we see those who are still young in life come to understand the message of the bible. They recognize the truth of who Jesus is and what he has done for us and they give their hearts to Him. That's how our souls are transformed and how we begin a new life in Jesus, whether it happens at age 11 or age 81.

Besides life change, though, is a parallel reality of young people going through these motions without the heart-level understanding behind it. I have known a lot of adults who went through "churchy" events and activities as a child, but didn't really understand it. Either to please their friends or the adults that were involved or maybe just getting swept up in the moment, they had an experience that others would go on to describe as "salvation" when in truth, their hearts were unchanged. Sadly, a misunderstood moment is the true event on many occasions that we can mistake for salvation.

It's possible to sing the songs, make the crafts, play the games, hear the words, but to not internalize that you are a sinner, Christ is the savior, and to give your all to Him. Unfortunately, I believe that many people have been involved in the activities of church without ever really coming to know the power of Jesus in them. I wonder if, as you read this, you are realizing that this is your story. Is it possible that you don't experience the reality of God in your life because you never actually had God in your heart like you thought you did? Is there a chance that you got the activities, without getting that you were a sinner and repenting to give your life to Jesus? I would hate for you to think that there is no power in the gospel because the event that you look back on as "salvation" was actually just a confused kid trying to do what she thought others in her life wanted her to do. I want you to know that the mystery of the gospel is CHRIST IN YOU, not you in VBS or a church camp. And if you come to trust in this Jesus, He enters your heart and life and transforms you.

If this sounds like something you want or need to finally happen in your life, I encourage you to go to church, find a pastor, and ask how you can be born again into the Kingdom of God. This is the mystery that could become your story... and it changes everything!
