And It's... Gone

After a devastating fire on May 25th, 2025, Logan and Georgia Tillman lost their home for the second time in just over a year. The couple had recently completed renovations following a grease fire on March 10, 2024.

This time, the fire damage totaled the property. The home at 708 S. Main Street is now being torn down to make way for new construction. Wednesday, July 2, Austin Whittenburg and his crew made quick work of the demolition and cleanup. Photos by AAH Jack Quirk

Blake Callaham: From Fiber Optics to Family Roots, A Leader Focused on What's Next

by AAH Ivan Cabral

When Blake Callaham started with Pioneer Telephone in 1998, he was digging trenches as part of a construction crew. Today, he leads the company as General Manager, guiding it through one of the most ambitious rural fiber buildouts in the region. His journey is a testament to grit, growth, and staying connected, both to community and to purpose.

Callaham didn't follow a traditional path. He began his career right after high school, working days and attending school at night. Over 15 years, he earned an associate degree from Western Oklahoma State College, a bachelor's from the University of Oklahoma, and an MBA from the University of Central Oklahoma. "It wasn't fast, but it was worth it," he said.

Throughout his rise at Pioneer, Callaham held multiple positions across departments and locations, giving him a well-rounded view of the company's operations. That experience proved valuable when the board of directors selected him as General Manager. "I understand what it takes to build the network from the ground up," he said. "That foundation helps me lead with clarity."

Under his leadership, Pioneer has shifted from its roots as a telephone provider into a forward-looking technology solutions company. With more than 80 percent of its 15,000-mile fiber network already complete, Pioneer is on track to finish by early 2027. But Callaham says the story doesn't end there.

"We're building more than infrastructure. We're building opportunity," he explained. "It's about what comes next, the services and innovations that will shape life in rural Oklahoma."

That forward vision is being channeled into Project Lightspeed, Pioneer's strategic plan through 2030. It aims to align employee insight with company goals, ensuring adaptability and long-term relevance in a fast-changing digital landscape.

Beyond broadband, Callaham is a strong advocate for workforce development. He credits partnerships with career tech centers like Chisholm Trail with providing essential training for Pioneer employees.

Despite his busy schedule, Callaham remains deeply connected to his roots. He lights up when talking about his family, especially his granddaughters. His wife Laura is launching a new business, Vintage Joy, in Kingfisher, a sign that the Callahams' ties to the community run deep.

"I've been blessed," he said. "And I believe the best is still ahead." To watch this full episode head on over to AllAboutHennessey.com

WE SEE YOU, MARK!!

by AAH Amy Smith

All About Hennessey has partnered with the Hennessey Flower Shop to honor an outstanding citizen! June's All About YOU flowers are dedicated to Mark Henry, and here is why: Mark is the kind of person who quietly makes a big difference. He cooks for anyone who needs a meal, welds and fixes all the little broken things, often for little or no charge, and is always willing to lend a hand wherever it's needed. His heart for this community runs deep. He was a driving force behind the building of the cross that so many of us now enjoy and find comfort in.

Mark doesn't do it for recognition, but this month, we want to recognize him anyway.

On behalf of All About Hennessey and The Hennessey Flower Shop, we're proud to present these All About YOU flowers to Mark... simply for being YOU!! Stay tuned for JULY'S All About YOU Flowers- to nominate the extra special person in your life!

MID-YEAR RESOLUTIONS / SUMMER REFRESH

It's July! Do you know what that means? Yes, it means it's hot outside, but it also means we're over halfway through the year!

Are you still going strong with your New Year's resolution? Maybe you had good intentions, but a lasting change didn't stick? Or maybe you didn't officially make a resolution and are feeling kind of aimless right now? Never fear! The OKSeasonedSisters are here to encourage you to still try. It's not too late to make positive changes. Dare we say, it's never too late to resolve to do better! Let's call it a mid-year resolution!

C.S. Lewis once said, "You can't go back and change the beginning, but you can start where you are and change the ending." If that New Year's resolution didn't pan out, give yourself some grace, meet yourself where you are right now, and take the first step in the right direction, whatever that may look like for you! If you're at a loss about where to start, we've come up with a couple of potential jumping-off points for you.

Whether you've ever successfully completed it or not, you've surely heard of spring cleaning, but let us introduce you to the "summer refresh." The summertime, with its heat that can force you indoors, longer days, and no school, might just be the perfect time to reset. Reevaluate. REFRESH.

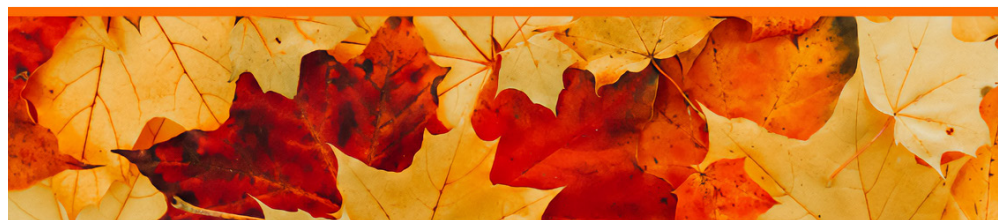

Do you remember a few years ago when Marie Kondo was all the rage in reorganization? Her advice was to hold each object and ask yourself: does this spark joy? If the answer is no, thank it for its service to you and get rid of it. That might be too much for some people, but it could be a great starting point for others! If this method appeals to you and you'd like to dive head-first into reorganizing your life, it's called the KonMari method.

RECIPES • LIFE • FAMILY

FOLLOW THEM ON FACEBOOK, INSTAGRAM
AND MSHA-KE/OKSEASONEDSISTERS

If that's not really your jam, maybe focus your summer refresh elsewhere. Now that we're far removed from hibernation season, this could be a great time to focus on your health: trying out new healthy recipes with the fresh produce that's in season (take advantage of those farmers markets), getting those steps in before the midday heat sets in, and making sure you're staying hydrated (yes, this is your reminder to drink your water!).

Your habits impact every area of your life, especially your mental health. Consider taking a step back and taking a look at things you can change to improve your quality of life. How's your time management? What does your work/life balance look like? Are there any new routines you can establish to make your day-to-day just a tad bit easier? Prioritize self-care, check in with yourself, and take an inventory of your habits.

If a full-blown summer refresh feels out of reach, start small! Make a daily to-do list. Tackle some of those DIY projects you've been putting off. Something as simple as getting new towels or bedding may just be the jumpstart you need. Or, if home improvement is a hard "no," use this time intentionally with your kiddos while they're at home! We've mentioned it's never too late to learn new habits/skills... well, it's never too early either. Encourage ownership by including them in rearranging their bedroom. Teach them some new skills in the kitchen (sourdough, am I right?). Get messy, have fun, and make memories!

Whether you're just trying to find a method in the madness or are ready to dive head-first into your mid-year resolutions, focus on setting yourself up for success in the coming days. In just three months, we'll be in October (but who's counting, right?!), so now is a great time to make those changes before the fall.

July 3rd, an officer was running radar at the intersection of Highways 81 and 51 when he spotted a white Ford Explorer that didn't fully stop at the stop sign and also didn't have any working tag lights. The vehicle turned east onto Highway 51, and the officer pulled it over. When he walked up to the driver's side window, he immediately noticed a strong smell of burnt marijuana coming from the vehicle. The driver gave consent to search the car, and during the search, the officer found a glass container holding three joints, two THC vape pens, and an empty container with marijuana residue. The items were confiscated, and the driver was given two citations: one for possession of marijuana and one for drug paraphernalia.

July 4th, around 2:00 PM, an officer got a call from a woman wanting to report her vehicle stolen. She explained that her car broke down back on June 29th, so she parked it in the Eagle Mart parking lot near Pizza Hut. She said she had permission from the store owners to leave it there temporarily, but when her parents drove by earlier that morning, the car was gone. She confirmed that she owned the vehicle outright, didn't owe any money on it, and there were no legal issues tied to it. The officer went to Eagle Mart and spoke with an employee, who said he remembered two guys in a pickup truck with a trailer taking the vehicle around 2:30 PM on July 3rd. He assumed they were supposed to pick it up and didn't think anything was out of the ordinary. Video surveillance showed an older Dodge pickup with a car trailer and two men. One was wearing a white top and blue pants, the other had on a red sleeveless shirt, tan shorts, and a black hat. The man in red was also seen on footage entering Pizza Hut around 2:30 PM. He pointed toward the vehicle during a short conversation with an employee and then left. The footage clearly showed the suspects and vehicle, and matched the time and location of the reported theft. to view photos of suspects visit the Hennessey Police facebook page.

July 6th, around 8:30 PM, an officer was called to a gas station on South Main Street about a suspicious item. When the officer arrived, employees reported that a man described as a white male with a limp had been acting strange in the store. He was going in and out of the bathroom, tried to swipe a sandwich, and stuffed a bunch of condiment packets into his pockets. When staff confronted him about paying, he pulled some condiments from his pocket and accidentally dropped a ball of tinfoil on the counter. He quickly snatched it back and tried to pay for the sandwich with a card, but it got declined, so he left. After he took off, last seen riding a bike south on Highway 81, employees found a red envelope mixed in with the condiment mess. Inside was more tinfoil wrapped around a white powdery substance, so they called it in. The substance was tested for fentanyl, cocaine, and heroin, and all came back negative. It was sealed up and placed in the evidence locker.

Emma's Spain Adventure Through a mother's eyes:

By AAH Amy Smith

It was the experience of a lifetime for Emma Sipe-Copeland, a soon-to-be senior at Hennessey High School, as she proudly represented Team USA in Spain during an unforgettable international basketball and cultural tour. Accompanied by her mother, Lacey Copeland, grandmother Pene Cline, and aunt Gracie Mills, the trip blended fierce competition with sightseeing, history, and a taste of Spanish life.

The family began their adventure in Barcelona, where the bustling city welcomed them with sunny skies.

The team's first test came quickly. On their second day, they scrimmaged a local team from the town of Gava. Despite never having played together before, the team found their rhythm fast, resulting in a thrilling 76-76 tie. "It went really good for their first time ever on the court together," Lacey shared.

The following day offered a change of pace with a visit to the seaside town of Sitges. Swimming, shopping, and local cuisine, including the famously polarizing paella, filled their time. Later, the group cooled off with water games in Castelldefels' Olympic Canal and enjoyed a relaxing evening with dinner and gelato.

Day four brought a slower start and a bit of retail therapy. The girls walked to a nearby mall for breakfast and stocked up on water bottles before heading into Castelldefels for lunch. That afternoon, Team USA played two games in Cornellà de Llobregat, winning the first 64-42 and falling short in the second 33-64. Lacey noted that the officiating seemed a bit unfair during the second matchup. Despite the loss, the girls shared a great moment afterward, trading jerseys with players from the first team they faced.

On day five, Lacey and Gracie began the morning with a 7 a.m. trip to a local laundromat to wash uniforms. By late morning, the team was back on the court for the tournament finale. Team USA gave it their all and finished in second place overall. The conditions were tough, with the games held in a non-air-conditioned gym while the outside temperature climbed to 91 degrees.

After the games, the team rewarded themselves with a long walk to the beach, two miles, to be exact, and dinner at Marchalo, where they were surprised to find Oklahoma-style smash burgers on the menu. A swim in the sea followed before they caught a ride back to the hotel.

Their final full day in Spain was spent touring some of Barcelona's most iconic sites. They began with Antoni Gaudí's world-famous Sagrada Família, the largest unfinished Catholic church in the world. From there, they continued to the Cathedral of the Holy Cross and Saint Eulalia and ended their day exploring Park Güell, another colorful and whimsical Gaudí creation.

Though the walking had worn them out, Lacey summed it up best: "Absolutely incredible day." To make this trip even more special, Emma received a personal invitation from her coach to be the point guard in Italy in 2026. Lacey would like to say a huge thank you to everyone who helped make the trip possible.

"It truly will be a trip we will never forget."

Celebrating with Joy!

The Hennessey Care Center celebrated the 4th of July by organizing games for the residents. They enjoyed playing tic-tac-toe and ring toss. Janice Fuksa, the owner of Eagle Snow, generously provided snow cones for both residents and staff to enjoy. Everyone had a wonderful time filled with fun and laughter on the Independence Day!
