BUSY WEEKEND BRINGS CROWDS, COMPETITION, AND COMMUNITY SPIRIT

JOSH MELOY COMES HOME

Hennessey's own country music star, Josh Meloy, returned home for two sold-out concerts Thursday and Friday, July 23 and 24, at Vernost Winery on Main Street.

After spending the past several years touring the country, Meloy's homecoming was a special event for local fans, who packed the venue both nights to welcome him and his band back to Hennessey.

With a smile, Meloy greeted the crowd by saying, "This is my favorite venue. I only had to drive about a mile to get here!"

Because the concerts were limited to guests 21 and older, many of Meloy's family members, along with plenty of children, gathered across the street in the InterBank parking lot to enjoy the music from outside the venue.

Both shows sold out quickly. On Friday morning, organizers released an additional 100 tickets, which were snapped up by eager fans.

Judging by the enthusiastic reception, it's safe to say Hennessey is already looking forward to Josh Meloy's next hometown performance.

NOT YOUR DAD'S GO-KARTS!

The Hennessey Rodeo Grounds came to life Friday and Saturday, July 24-25, with a different kind of horsepower as the 2026 Hennessey Round-Up Kart Races brought two days of high-speed action to town.

Earlier in the week, the DCS Motorsports crew transformed the rodeo grounds into a high-banked oval dirt track. Friday morning's rain raised concerns about the event, but track crews quickly went to work pumping standing water and preparing the racing surface. By Friday evening's practice session, the track was in excellent condition.

More than 100 racing karts filled the pit area while spectators packed the grandstands to cheer on drivers ranging in age from just 4 years old to adults. Family members and race teams worked side by side throughout the weekend, making adjustments and preparing their karts for competition.

These aren't your dad's go-karts. They are professionally built racing machines competing in multiple classes, with many teams arriving in large race haulers complete with spare parts, tools, and support

EXPLOSION DAMAGES WELDING SHOP SOUTH OF HENNESSEY

Hennessey firefighters responded to an explosion at approximately 11:40 a.m., July 21, at Jim's Welding, located at 9000 S. U.S. Highway 81, south of Hennessey.

According to Emergency Management, employee Rob Fife was welding beneath a hot oil truck when the explosion occurred. Fife's son, Gunner, and shop owner Kim Hawk were also inside the building at the time. Other than ringing ears no one was injured.

The explosion caused damage to the building, blowing a large hole through the roof and destroying a garage door and several windows. Debris from the building was scattered several hundred feet from the shop.

crews. The atmosphere was much like a miniature NASCAR event, featuring close racing, skilled drivers, and plenty of excitement.

Saturday's activities began with a breakfast, followed by a driver meet-and-greet at the Hennessey Aquatic Center before the evening's main event.

Following the races, winners received unique handmade trophies featuring a wooden plaque topped with horns, designed to reflect the Hennessey Round-Up theme.

The event was produced by DCS Motorsports and organized by Harold Shaw of Hennessey. It is not affiliated with the Hennessey Round-Up Club, which produces the annual Hennessey Rodeo. Photos by AAN Jack Quirk

BACK TO SCHOOL BASH 2026 EDITION

The annual Hennessey Back to School Bash kicked off this evening, Sunday, July 26, hosted by the Hennessey First Christian Church where hundreds of students showed up and got stocked up.

The family picked up pretty much everything they needed to start school. On top of school supplies everyone was treated to free cookies, pizza, hotdogs and snow cones.

The evening ended with a free swim at the Hennessey Aquatic center where the pool was packed with families enjoying themselves.

This year funds were raised with a flock of flamingos visiting yards around town. People could pay to have them placed in someone's yard, then could pay to have them removed. Photos by AAH Jack Quirk

Physician Assistant (PA-C)

MEET VIC HAGUE

Caring for One Patient at a Time

By Amy Townsend

You can usually tell within the first few minutes whether someone genuinely enjoys what they do.

That was my impression after meeting Victoria "Vic" Hague. She's welcoming, easy to talk to, and has a calming presence. She listens, and you can tell she actually hears what you're saying. You never get the feeling she's rushing through the conversation or already thinking about the next patient.

Originally from Florida, Vic attended Oklahoma State University before earning her master's degree in Physician Assistant Studies from the University of Oklahoma in Tulsa. She and her husband, a local veterinarian, have lived in Kingfisher for a little over a year. Along with raising their three-year-old daughter and four-month-old son, they stay busy with a cow-calf operation and hay production.

Today, she's a certified Physician Assistant (PA-C) at Kingfisher iCARE Primary Care & Wellness. She's been with the practice for about eight months, with three of those spent on maternity leave. When her family moved to Kingfisher, she hoped to find a locally owned practice where she could build relationships with patients instead of simply treating illnesses. "I wanted to serve the community through a local, family-owned practice. iCARE offered exactly that, and even more."

Growing up around agriculture and still living it today helps her connect with many of the families she treats. "My husband and I are deeply rooted in agriculture, which is something we share with so many people here. I love helping rural communities have better access to quality healthcare."

When she's away from work, you'll usually find her with family, helping with cattle, cooking, or team roping whenever she can squeeze it in.

Vic doesn't have every step of her future mapped out, but she knows one thing: she wants to keep serving Kingfisher. She regularly asks patients what they think the community needs and hopes to continue finding ways to meet those needs as her career grows.

The answer to what keeps her going is pretty simple. "Many of my patients are having a hard day when they come to see me. If I can help them feel even a little better, then I've done what I came to do. My passion has always been serving others and helping them become the best version of themselves."

After sitting down with Vic, one thing stood out more than anything else: she genuinely enjoys caring for people. That's hard to teach, and it's something patients notice.

Vic is currently accepting new primary care patients and also provides joint injections. If you're looking for a provider who takes the time to listen, she's ready to welcome you to her practice.

Learning as We Go, One Recipe at a Time

by OKSEASONEDSISTERS

Our last article was a level of vulnerability that was actually a little scary to put in print. A little scary and a little freeing, so we're leaning into that and letting you in on every step of this journey with us. We've moved one step up from having nothing and have the beginnings of a little something to share with you. Something still in the developmental phase. We're hopeful you'll enjoy it and feel more free to make it your own if you don't have us bossing you like we have it all figured out. Haha.

The "We Tried It" Bark

**Ingredients****

- * 3 overripe bananas
- * ½ cup vanilla Greek yogurt
- * About 10 strawberries
- * Whole bag of dark chocolate chips, melted

Mush the bananas flat on a cookie sheet lined with parchment paper. Spread the yogurt evenly over the bananas, then layer with sliced strawberries. Freeze until the top is frozen solid. Melt the entire bag of dark chocolate chips and pour evenly over the top. The chocolate will probably start to harden immediately, so it's a good idea to go ahead and cut it into squares before returning it to the freezer. Keep frozen, or refrigerate for a bit before eating if you'd like it a little softer.

We stumbled upon this recipe and were ridiculously excited about sharing it with you as the perfect snack for the end of summer break and a great after-school treat. Can you believe it's already time to be thinking about after-school snacks?

Let's not get distracted by how fast time flies and stay focused on this recipe. This recipe that seemed sooo easy and delicious. Which, yeah... maybe we immediately started to complicate by wanting to add some kind of crust. Pretzels? Graham crackers? Nilla Wafers? Something!

Our mom has said for years that it's best to make a recipe as intended before making any changes. We should have listened. Haha. Our first attempt had crushed pretzels as a crust and peanut butter added to the yogurt. It was **NOT** a success. Well, if at first you don't succeed, try doing it the way your mama told you... or whatever that saying is.

So, we followed the recipe. Which was actually just a video that gave the general idea but not exact amounts of anything except the bananas. We can now tell ya after making it that you really might as well melt the entire bag of chocolate chips to get a good coating over the whole top.

We can also tell you that it's not really that good. (Man, really wish we could use emojis so you could see the cringe, the slightly embarrassed smile, the laughing, and even the little hopeful grin that maybe you'll actually like it as is.)

It's not bad. Just not really good... in our opinion.

If you like a little tartness in your sweet snacks, you'd probably love it! If you're a little more like us and prefer your sweet snacks... well, sweet... maybe add some honey or maple syrup to the yogurt? Not sure how that would freeze, but it's fun to find out.

Thomas Edison said, **"I have not failed. I've just found 10,000 ways that won't work."***

We had such a good laugh with our mom and brother, who were brave and gracious enough to try it and keep eating while thinking of ways to make it better.

Mom says the yogurt needs to be less tart, either by sweetening it up or maybe just using less of it. Brother says we should just consider these smoothie starters, which we're all excited to try! Just add some milk and protein powder and blend.

As much as we'd hoped this would be a good snack for kids, it's too messy as is, so there's still some figuring out to do in that department.

NEW 522 AMBULANCE DISTRICT BOARD HOLDS FIRST MEETING, BEGINS BUILDING EMS SYSTEM

by AAN Jack Quirk

The newly formed Hennessey 522 Ambulance District Board held its first organizational meeting Wednesday, July 22, taking the first steps toward establishing the district that will oversee long-term ambulance service for the Hennessey area.

The meeting served primarily as an orientation, with Kingfisher County Emergency Manager and former Kingfisher 522 Ambulance District board member Randy Poindexter, along with other county officials, explaining the legal requirements, budgeting process and responsibilities of operating an ambulance district.

Poindexter said the board's immediate priorities include obtaining required bonds, securing legal counsel, establishing financial procedures, preparing its first budget and developing bid specifications for ambulance providers.

Board members discussed preparing a detailed request for proposals that will define service expectations, including advanced life support, staffing levels, backup ambulance availability, response times and equipment standards. Hennessey Fire Chief Brandon Scott said several ambulance providers have already expressed interest in bidding on the contract.

Much of the meeting focused on finances.

John Storm of Storm & Hauser explained that the district is expected to receive about $200,000 annually from the newly approved three-mill property tax, but those funds will not begin arriving until early next year. Combined with the Town of Hennessey's existing ambulance sales tax, approximately $400,000 could be available each year for EMS operations. However, Storm cautioned that ambulance contracts, administrative costs, required audits and other expenses could quickly reduce those funds.

Board members also discussed whether the district should contract directly with an ambulance provider or reimburse the Town of Hennessey while allowing the town to maintain the contract. Storm said direct contracting could expose the board to greater financial liability if costs exceed revenues, while others noted it would also provide greater control over ambulance operations. No decision was made, and members agreed additional legal guidance is needed.

Kingfisher County Assessor Carrie Turner explained how the new three-mill property tax will appear on tax statements and reminded residents that the tax funds the availability of ambulance service, not the cost of an ambulance ride. Patients will still be billed by the ambulance provider for transport.

The board also reviewed Hennessey's ambulance resources. The town owns an ambulance and the building where it is housed, both of which could help reduce costs for a future provider. A second town-owned ambulance, however, is more than 20 years old and will likely require significant upgrades or replacement. Members also reviewed how neighboring ambulance services currently provide mutual aid when Hennessey's ambulance is already on another call.

Before adjourning, members drew lots to establish staggered terms and elected officers. Ray Shimanek was elected chairman with a five-year term, Pearla Blanco vice chairman with a two-year term, Dr. David Matousek treasurer with a one-year term, Levi Copeland secretary with a four-year term, and Shelley Muzny board member with a three-year term.

The board will meet again Wednesday, July 29, at 6 p.m. at the Hennessey Fire Station to continue organizing the district and begin preparing bid documents for permanent ambulance service.

Helping Others Find Their Way

Sea turtles are known for one incredible ability: they always find their way.

No matter how far they travel or how many obstacles they encounter, they instinctively return home. Heather has always admired the mascot of the sea, which is one of the reasons sea turtles have taken over her office.

To her, they represent perseverance, purpose, and the reminder that there's always a path forward.

That's exactly what she hopes participants discover at Work Ready Enid.

Heather loves watching everything from the workshop come together. Seeing participants experience those "aha" moments, gain confidence, and begin succeeding in the workforce is what makes her job so rewarding.

If she could teach every participant one thing, it would be this: You already have valuable skills. Sometimes you just need someone to help you recognize them.

Heather believes no one should have to navigate their career journey alone.

Whether someone is looking for a better-paying job, a fresh start, or simply more opportunities, Work Ready Enid provides the tools, support, and encouragement to help them move forward.

As Heather puts it, investing just one week in yourself could change the direction of your future.

FUNDRAISER FOR THE PEREZ ENRIQUEZ FAMILY

Marco Antonio Pérez Enriquez, 49, was a valued member of the Hennessey community and the father of a son who lives here locally. Originally from Mexico, Marco had very little family nearby, making this loss especially difficult for his loved ones.

After a courageous 10-year battle with kidney failure that required ongoing dialysis, Marco's health rapidly declined, and he passed away after his organs stopped functioning.

His family is now seeking assistance with funeral expenses so they can give him the dignified farewell he deserves. Any donation, regardless of the amount, will make a meaningful difference and is deeply appreciated.

The CAT Team has established a donation account at Community State Bank to support Marco's family. Donations can be made to the CAT Team; please write "Marco Antonio Pérez Enriquez" in the memo line to ensure the funds are directed to his family. Due to the time-sensitive nature of funeral arrangements, donations will be accepted through Friday, July 31.

Marco Antonio Pérez Enríquez, de 49 años, fue un apreciado miembro de la comunidad de Hennessey y padre de un hijo que vive aquí. Originario de México, Marco tenía muy poca familia cerca, lo que hace que esta pérdida sea aún más difícil para sus seres queridos. Después de una valiente lucha de 10 años contra la insuficiencia renal, durante la cual dependió de tratamientos de diálisis, su estado de salud se complicó rápidamente y falleció después de que sus órganos dejaran de funcionar.

Su familia está solicitando apoyo para cubrir los gastos funerarios y poder darle la despedida digna que merece. Cualquier donativo, sin importar la cantidad, será de gran ayuda y será profundamente agradecido. El CAT Team ha establecido una cuenta con Community State Bank en Hennessey para recibir donaciones en apoyo a la familia de Marco. Las donaciones pueden hacerse a nombre del CAT Team, escribiendo "Marco Antonio Pérez Enríquez" en el concepto o memo del pago para asegurar que los fondos sean destinados a su familia. Debido a la urgencia de los arreglos funerarios, las donaciones se recibirán únicamente hasta el viernes 31 de julio.

5 MORE MINUTES

by Bonny Flesher

Every painting or drawing I tackle has meaning to me. I have my own personal family portfolio with many family members. I'd like to think I have captured their faces and character for future generations. Maybe they will remember a story passed down through the years.

Meet my current project, my Grandma Willie, my dad's mother.

Grandma lost her parents at the age of 3 in a car accident. She was sent to live with family members. The scars I saw on her back were a testament to her childhood, working in the fields and not being sent to school.

She married my grandfather at the age of 13. By the time she was 15, she had the first of her 10 children. She had lost a set of twins just a few days after birth.

But Grandma was one of the most positive people I know. She memorized recipes from someone reading them to her. I can still see her at the stove frying chicken in her cast iron skillet. I remember my parents talking about her taking in ironing. The ministers would bring their church shirts to be starched.

Grandma came to live with my parents the last 3 years of her life. Even though I was grown and out of the house, I felt like she was my partner in crime!

I wish I could tell her about her Indian heritage! My 6th great-grandmother on her side was named Betsy Silk Feathers. We know her family members came through on the Trail of Tears.

Grandma Willie passed away July 28, 1984. The last photograph I have is of her holding my 5-week-old son, wrapped in a handmade quilt she had made. I often took her quilting projects when visiting. I'm fortunate to have one of those homemade quilts. I cherish the stain from her dribbling snuff while she worked on it. She marked my quilt!

After Grandma passed away, a neighbor made me a Grandma Willie doll using the lid from her snuff jar for a hat. The lace and material were scraps from her sewing stash! My doll has a place of honor in her leopard chair as a quiet reminder of the many sacrifices and shoulders I stand on to this day!

Grandma loved her people, and even though life wasn't easy, she always found something positive in the world. I knew she loved me, and I adored her.

I remember going to her house and having the best cheese you ever had. I didn't know the word "commodities" or what that meant. And oh, those home-canned goods, from green beans to the best canned pickles. She would always send a few jars home with us. I don't like store-bought green beans to this day! I was spoiled on Grandma's!

There was always a pot of brown beans and cornbread on the menu. She had a way of making everything taste so good.

If I had 5 more minutes to talk to her, I'm not sure where I'd start. I continue working on the painting of her, all the while cherishing the memories I have of her. The ladies I paint with giggle when I sit down to paint because I always say, "Hi, Grandma!"

If you don't hear anything I have written, hear this: Hug your loved ones and cherish the simple things! One day they will be your gift!

More Than a Police Officer: Meet Hennessey's K-9 Team, Officer Julia Storey and Vader

By AAH Jack Quirk

For Hennessey Police Officer Julia Storey, a career in law enforcement was almost inevitable.

Originally from Illinois, Storey grew up in Oklahoma surrounded by family members in law enforcement. From an early age, she knew she wanted to help people. She also loved animals and once considered becoming a veterinarian. Today, she combines both passions as a K-9 officer with the Hennessey Police Department.

Her partner is Vader, a 10-year-old Dutch Shepherd who has become one of the department's best-known officers, even if he works on four legs.

Storey purchased Vader when he was 7½ months old after seeking out a bloodline she had admired for years. She began training him at 10½ months, and he earned his first certification by the time he turned one. Although he's showing a little gray around the muzzle, Vader is still actively serving the community.

"He still has a lot of go in him," Storey said. Vader is a dual-purpose police K-9, he was previously nationally and state certified in narcotics detection and is currently State certified in narcotics detection and nationally certified in patrol work. This includes suspect apprehension, building and area searches, tracking, article searches, and advanced off-leash obedience. His certifications must be renewed annually, and Oklahoma law requires K-9 teams to complete at least 16 hours of training each month to stay sharp.

As a narcotics detection dog, Vader is trained to locate heroin, cocaine, methamphetamine, and marijuana. Storey said the searches are like a game for him, making training enjoyable while keeping his skills sharp.

Vader's reputation extends well beyond Hennessey. He has appeared in magazines, been featured by national K-9 organizations, and was even considered for the television program America's Top Dog. This year, the Oklahoma Attorney General's Office invited him to be nominated for its first ever K-9 of the Year award. For the occasion, K9 Storm, provided Vader with a custom tuxedo that fits over his protective ballistic vest, donated by Spike's K-9 Fund.

Storey said caring for a working police dog is expensive, but she has been fortunate to receive support from businesses, organizations, and community members who have donated everything from dog food to specialized equipment.

She also praised Hennessey's new Friends of the Police program, which allows residents to support projects and equipment that often fall outside the department's budget.

Thanks to a donation from Spike's K9 Fund, Vader now has a "Hot-N-Pop" heat alarm system that automatically lowers the patrol vehicle's windows, activates the lights and siren, and alerts officers if the inside temperature becomes dangerously hot. The system helps protect Vader during Oklahoma's hot summer months.

While Vader is nearing retirement, the future of Hennessey's K-9 program is already in training. Storey is preparing Vader's daughter, Vindi, to become the department's next narcotics detection dog. Unlike Vader, Vindi will be a single-purpose K-9, allowing her to safely participate in school demonstrations and community outreach events after completing her certification.

For now, Vader continues to patrol alongside Storey as both a crime-fighting partner and one of Hennessey's most popular public servants. Whether he's searching for narcotics, tracking suspects, or simply drawing smiles from residents, Vader has proven that some of the department's finest officers just happen to walk on four paws.

Watch the entire video interview with Officer Storey and Vader coming soon on the All About Network Show.

PARK CLEANUP UNDERWAY AT BULL FOOT PARK

The Town of Hennessey's Blaze Shimanek was hard at work Tuesday, July 21, mowing around the pond at Bull Foot Park. While the town does an excellent job maintaining the park, the steep banks and shoreline around the pond require a little extra effort.

Using a mowing attachment mounted on an excavator, Shimanek was able to safely reach over the edge and cut down the tall weeds that are difficult to access with conventional mowing equipment. The specialized attachment helps keep the pond area looking neat while improving accessibility around the water for all those fishermen.

Traffic Stop Leads to Methamphetamine Arrest

A routine traffic stop in Hennessey on July 19 resulted in the arrest of a woman on multiple charges after methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia were allegedly discovered in her vehicle. According to police reports, the vehicle was stopped after an officer observed it traveling with a defective headlight on Highway 51. A records check revealed the driver, Roni Ann Nelson, had a suspended driver's license for a second or subsequent offense, and the vehicle did not have valid insurance on file.

According to police reports, an inventory of the vehicle before it was towed uncovered two containers holding suspected methamphetamine, along with a glass pipe, syringes, a straw, and plastic baggies. The substance field-tested positive for methamphetamine, with approximately 4.94 grams recovered.

Nelson was arrested and booked into the Kingfisher County Jail on complaints of possession of a controlled dangerous substance, possession of drug paraphernalia, driving under suspension (second or subsequent offense), no insurance, and defective equipment.

MITCHELL ROAD PROJECT NEARS COMPLETION

Phases One and Two of the three-phase reconstruction project on South Mitchell Road are now complete.

Over the past week, contractor Rudy's Construction placed the final layer of asphalt and installed sod along the ditches, putting the finishing touches on the newly rebuilt roadway.

The road was constructed to Oklahoma Department of Transportation (ODOT) specifications and is designed to handle heavy truck traffic for years to come.

The remaining one-third of the roadway will be reconstructed once additional grant funding becomes available, which officials expect to happen in the near future. Photo by AAH Jack Quirk

NEW COUNTY SHOP IS UNDERWAY

The ground work for the new Kingfisher County District 2 shop and office is off to a good start. F5 Construction and Equipment has completed the pad for the site and the foundation work for the 70 X 120 foot building will begin shortly. During the ground breaking Commissioner Mike Sparks said "I've already seen it built in my head," Sparks said. "Now we get to build it for real."

The new building will feature three offices and two drive-through work bays, with bays on the north and south sides.
